Scopus Author identifier

Scopus automatically assigns authors an author identifier and associates authors with their publications. To find your author ID, login to Scopus and use the Author search to find your profile. (If you have multiple profiles, you can request to merge them).

Publication lists are updated automatically from Scopus content (Note: content not indexed in Scopus cannot be added). Citation metrics are available from 1996 onwards.

Scopus author profiles

If you need to make corrections to your Scopus author profile, see the quick 2.20 minute video "Update a Scopus author profile" that is located on this page.

Or see the handout below for instructions on how to ensure your Scopus Author Identifier and associated profile are correct and to connect it with your ORCID.
